Gothic Research Seminar Series: January 2026

On Friday, January 16, 2026, the Business and Economics Research Committee (BERC) hosted a special seminar event with guest professors from Inha University, South Korea. After a pleasant lunch, presenters Jiang Ting and Dr. Daisik Nam presented on the topic "Dynamic Coordination of Drones and Public Transportation for Optimized Last Mile Delivery with Arbitrary Launch and Landing." The event was co-sponsored by the Association for Supply Chain Management (ASCM) and the NJCU's Korea Maritime Institute (KMI) Center for Supply Chain and Maritime Logistics (CSCML).

COIL Collaboration

The NJCU School of Business Management Department is proud to launch its 2026 Collaboration in International Online Learning (COIL) Program Series—a strategic initiative designed to embed global engagement across our curriculum.

We are pleased to introduce this series in Spring 2026 with our first COIL collaboration between NJCU and Universidad de las Américas Puebla (UDLAP), based in San Andrés Cholula, Mexico. This collaboration marks the continuation of a scalable, high-impact platform for international collaboration, faculty innovation, and student-centered global learning at NJCU.

We extend our sincere appreciation to Dr. John Donnellan (COIL SME) and to our two course professors Dr. Yi-Yu Chen and Dr. Martin J. Larsson for their leadership and vision in establishing this inaugural collaboration between our two institutions.
