Faculty Knights Award Winner

On May 13th, the NJCU department of intercollegiate athletics hosted the 2024 installment of "The Gothics" — the Gothic Knights' annual athletics awards banquet. Nearly 250 members of the NJCU athletics community gathered at Margaret Williams Theatre in Hepburn Hall for the awards show. The Faculty Knights Award was presented by Dr. Lauren Johnson, Sports Management, in appreciation of the support and commitment to the Gothic Knights student-athletes. Congratulations to this year's winner: Dr. John Donnellan, Management Chair.

Hispanic Bar Association Event

On May 1st, NJCU served as the host for the 14th Annual Hispanic Bar Association of New Jersey Annual Corporate Counsel Conference, which was held at the NJCU School of Business in Harborside. NJCU Interim President Andrés Acebo, who has long been active in the Hispanic National Bar Association, offered welcome remarks on behalf of the university. The event included a networking reception with in-house recruiters and talent acquisition agencies, which NJCU students were able to take advantage of for free.

Susan D. Williams Excellence in Teaching Award Winner

On May 23rd, Dr. John Laski, Management Department, was named winner of the Susan D. Williams Teaching Excellence Award. School of Business students had the opportunity to nominate a faculty member who they feel provides outstanding and excellence in teaching.

2024 Spring Business Student Research Showcase

On May 14th, the School of Business hosted the 12th Student Business Research Showcase. This competition offered undergraduate and graduate students a unique forum to present their research for prizes. Representatives from Chain IQ Group AG were in attendance for the student presentations, as well as Q&A. Congratulations to Kyle Grund & Devin Echavarria for winning 1st place in their topic of "Modeling Supply & Demand in the Self-Storage Market Using Data Envelopment Analysis".
